This give-and-take relationship includes the music of the early street bands in New Orleans, the dance hall music of the Roaring Twenties, Kansas City blues, Broadway musicals, film music, the mambo and merengue of the Caribbean, the bossa nova and samba of Brazil, the soul and funk and rock music of the sixties and seventies, the classical avant-garde, and many other musical forms and styles.

MASTER CLASSES

Legendary performing artists bring their music and ideas directly to you in our regular series of master classes. Presenters also include leading figures in the music business, who provide valuable insights into the workings of the industry. Recent guests have included Barry Harris, Pat Metheny, Roy Hargrove, Christian McBride, Bob Hurwitz, Cassandra Wilson, and John Zorn.

PRIVATE LESSONS

Once you reach the required level of proficiency, you can choose your private lesson instructors. With more than 230 core and private lesson instructors, our faculty list is a who's who of players on today's New York jazz scene. If you find a potential instructor who is not already part of our lesson faculty, we will add him or her to our roster.

Your academic advisor helps you structure your private instruction so that it best suits your interests and goals. For example, in a semester, you might choose one of these options:

- Nine lessons with your favorite teacher
- Six lessons on your main instrument with one teacher and three lessons on a secondary instrument with a different teacher
- Some or all of your lessons with an instructor whose primary interest is composition

INDEPENDENT STUDY

New School Jazz offers a number of independent study electives.

In conventional independent study you design and undertake a project that is supervised and evaluated by the academic director. Most conventional independent study projects require you to write a research paper exploring an area of music.

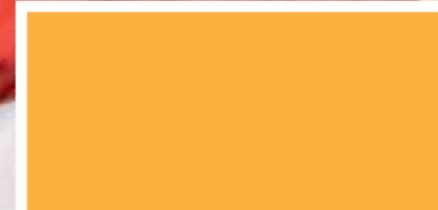

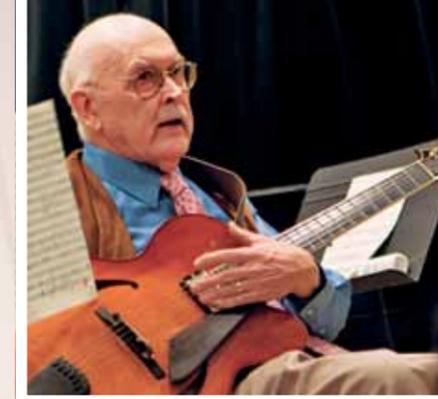

Earn up to 9 credits in the Independent Study Abroad (ISA) program. If you study abroad under ISA, you can earn credits in addition to those you receive for your musical activities and studies by writing a research paper.

Earn up to 6 credits with the professional tour option while you perform on the road.

To participate in these programs, you must be in good academic standing and work with a mentor to establish requirements and expectations. Your work will be carefully evaluated and graded by your mentor and the academic director at the end of the semester.
